THE NATION'S HERO.

Monument in Memory of Grant.

THE PEOPLES PARTY IN IOWA.

A Monument For Confederate Dead.

Stanford Monument to Junipero Serra.

Unveiling a Monument.

JACKSON (Miss.), June 3.—Five years labor and effort on the part of Mississippi culminated to-day in the unveiling of a monument to the Confederate dead. Mississippi sons of ex-Confederates, their wives, sons and daughters were here from all parts of the South, and several Eastern and Western States were represented, Iowa especially having a large contingent. The number of visitors is estimated at 20,000.

Early this morning a reception was tendered to the Confederate veterans at the Capitol building. Among the prominent ex-Confederates there were Governor Gordon of Georgia, Commander of the United Confederate Veterans, General Kirby Smith, General J. N. Bileps, Governor Stone of Mississippi, General J. A. Smith and scores of others.

At half-past 10 o'clock the procession began to move. Ten companies of the Mississippi National Guard came first. Behind them, and drawn by ten white horses, came a float carrying fifteen young ladies representing the Southern Confederacy and the different States which composed it. Next to the float came officers of the Ladies' Monument Association, the organization under which the monument was erected. Then came distinguished visitors from abroad, Confederate veterans in carriages, organized posts of Confederate veterans and sons of Confederate veterans. The procession, which was two miles in length, was greeted with cheers by crowds which lined the streets through which it passed. The Stars and Stripes were carried at the head of every division and floated from the Capitol. Side by side with them were carried torn and tattered Confederate battle flags.

When the grand-stand was reached, the exercises opened with prayer. The monument which was, up to this time draped in white muslin, was formally unveiled by Mrs. Margaret Davis Haynes, daughter of Jefferson Davis, amidst prolonged applause. The monument was formally presented by Miss Sallie B. Morgan, the presentation speech being made by Hon. A. C. Hoar. It was accepted by Col. J. R. McIntosh.

Senator Whithall delivered an oration upon "The Confederacy" which excited repeated applause. When he concluded, Mrs. Ruth Manship recited, with stirring effect, a poem, entitled "Sentinels song." Then Governor Lowry followed with a brief oration on the life and character of Jefferson Davis, in the course of which he said: "When partisanship had given place to sober reason and judgment, historians would accord the President of the Confederate States the front rank among the great statesmen of his day, as well as those who had preceded him." At the conclusion of the oration and music, the exercises were brought to a close by the benediction.

The Nation's Hero.

GALENA (Ill.), June 3.—The city to-day is crowded with people assembled to do honor to the memory of General Grant. The occasion is the unveiling of a monument to him presented to his old home by H. H. Kohlman of Chicago. From all directions crowds have poured into town since last night and fully 20,000 are now here. The city is in gay apparel, the main thoroughfare being a panorama of red, white and blue. Arches upon the principal crossings and mottoes betokening the reverence in which the name of the hero of Appomattox is held by his old neighbors, are promiscuously displayed. Visitors are clustered about every landmark associated with the name of Grant.

The public schools in Dubuque, Freeport and other near by towns closed and a large delegation of their citizens came to take part in the ceremonies. Business in Galena was entirely suspended. Two special trains from Chicago brought delegates of the Grand Army and distinguished citizens. Among them was Chauncey M. Depew, the orator of the day, Governor Fifer of Illinois, ex-Governor Hoard of Wisconsin, General Nelson A. Miles, Judge Gresham, Johannes Gelert Sculptor. H. H. Kohlman, donor of the statue, Senators Allison and Cullom, Congressman Henderson of Iowa and Judge Blodgett of the Federal Court. The ceremonies of the day included a parade participated in by the Grand Army veterans, visiting military and civic bodies and citizens. Gathered about the statue in the park, the exercises opened with the "Star Spangled Banner," rendered by the Fifteenth Regiment Band from Fort Sheridan, Mississippi. Pauline Kohlman, daughter of the donor, unveiled the statue, and the gathered multitude applauded. Ex-Governor Hoard then formally presented the statue to the city on behalf of the donor. The statue was accepted in a brief address by Park Commissioner McClennan on behalf of the city. He was followed by Chauncey M. Depew, who delivered the oration of the day, meeting with an enthusiastic reception. Addresses were also delivered by Governor Fifer and Judge Crabtree.

Junipero Serra Monument.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

MONTEREY, June 3.—The unveiling to-day of the monument of Father Junipero Serra, which Mrs. Leland Stanford had erected on Presidio Hill overlooking the city and Bay of Monterey, to commemorate the memory of the Franciscan friar, was witnessed by about five thousand people. Excursion trains from San Francisco and way stations arrived about 11 o'clock and were met at the depot by local organizations. The procession consisted of the Monterey military band, California Pioneers, Native sons of the Golden West, Young Men's Institute, Watsonville Zouaves, carriages containing officers of the day, orators, priests and friars. The procession marched from the depot to the spot where the monument is erected. The monument was unveiled by Miss Antonette and Master Stephen Field, children of Hon. T. J. Field of this place. Father Clementina Deymann delivered the oration in which he said Father Junipero Serra was born Nov. 24th, 1713, at Villa de Petra, Island of Mallorca, Spain. From there he went to Mexico, where for many years he officiated in the Indian Missions of Sierra Gorda in Mexico. He afterwards came to Alta California, founding the mission of San Diego in 1769 and arriving in Monterey on June 3rd, 1770, landing at the base of the hill where the cross has stood for many years to mark the spot where the Franciscan friar preached his first mass. Immediately afterwards he founded the Carmel mission near Monterey. He died on St. Augustine's day in 1774, and his body is buried in Carmel mission. Following Father Clementina, Hon. Judge W. H. Webb delivered the civic oration.

Kerr Acquitted.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The trial of Jas. W. Kerr, proprietor of the Occidental foundry, who shot and killed Edward Cogan, an apprentice, in June, 1890, during the ironmolders strike, ended to-day in a verdict of acquittal. The jury was out only three minutes. Kerr claimed the shooting of Cogan was unintentional and that he was endeavoring to protect the lives of himself and employees from an attack of strikers.

THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

People of Fashion Fill the Court.

CANADIAN CABINET CHANGES.

Predicted by a Prominent Politician.

Sir John McDonald's Condition Unchanged.

Baccarat Trial.

By Cable and Associated Press.

LONDON, June 3.—There was still the same crowd of fashionable people present this morning when court opened to continue the trial of the baccarat case. The Prince of Wales was in his usual place. Sir Charles Russell, leading counsel for defendants, commenced his address in behalf of his clients.

Four months after the baccarat games at Tranby Croft, when Sir William Leveitt made an attempt through Berkeley Leveitt, one of the witnesses to secure a modification or withdrawal of the charges, defendants said they were prepared to substantiate the charges made which they had made against Sir William Gordon Cumming. Sir Charles Russell laid special stress upon the "peculiar circumstances," under which the action was brought and referred at length to the interview which Sir William Gordon Cumming had with Lieutenant Leveitt, who was a subaltern in plaintiff's regiment, and who, being asked by Sir William to do what he could with Mrs. Arthur Wilson in regard to the baccarat scandal replied that he could not disbelieve his own eyes though he added he would gladly do anything for the sake of Sir William and for the sake of the regiment to which they belonged. Plaintiff's conduct, Sir Charles continued, "at no stage of this distressing story has been the conduct of an innocent and honorable man. No innocent and honorable man would have laid quiet under the charges made against plaintiff or have signed the confession which plaintiff signed. Counsel for defendants then said the presentation was brought only when plaintiff failed in his efforts to secure his retirement on half pay from the army.

There were nine persons concerned in this "melancholy business," said Sir Charles, all of whom have known plaintiff Cumming for many years. Plaintiff admitted, he said, his accusers were acting conscientiously in this matter. The jury would find it impossible to believe those persons were mistaken in regard to the character of plaintiff's conduct on the nights of the 8th and 9th of September, 1890. Plaintiff had admitted that they were all persons of honor and honesty, and having made charges they adhered to them, and plaintiff had not asked to be confronted with either of his accusers. Objection from secrecy came from Lyett Green, who asked that the matter be thrashed out then and there in order to avoid the possibilities of plaintiff's afterward repudiating the charges. Plaintiff had signed a degrading, humiliating document, and he did not take steps to bring his slanderers to justice until he found himself in another tight place; then he turned upon those who had been quiet, prepared to keep their agreement, though in their eye he was a dishonored man. With this remark, Sir Charles seemed to take up another line of argument for he said, gazing earnestly at the jury, "And now how about the three principal actors and plaintiff's action in regard to them; do you gentlemen of the jury doubt that plaintiff knew those gentlemen believed him guilty? He knew that in their eyes he was no longer in the category of honorable men. Was it conceivable that an innocent man under such circumstances should bear such an odious burden upon him? Defendants would tell the jury their mouths remained closed in this matter until January 1, 1891," and he dilated upon the innocent character of Tanby Croft, the café party and the mild character of baccarat games played there, saying one of the satisfactory of this case has been the dissipation of the absurd and preposterous notices which have been formed in regard to the occurrences at Tanby Croft.

It was noticed that the Prince of Wales and Sir William Gordon Cumming followed Sir Charles' speech with great attention and deep interest. In describing the events which took place Sir Charles said Arthur Stanley Wilson witnessed repeated acts of cheating on the part of Sir William Gordon Cumming and that when he (Wilson) turned to Mr. Berkeley Leveitt he whispered: "Cumming is cheating." The latter (Leveitt) replied: "Nonsense; you are mad." "But," added Sir Charles, "Berkeley Leveitt, after receiving this communication, paid more attention to the game than Sir William Gordon Cumming played and saw for himself that what Arthur Stanley Wilson had said was true.

After play was over Wilson told his mother, Mrs. Arthur Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Lyett Green, of what he had seen while Cummings was playing and they agreed, on the following night, to have Baccarat played a properly marked table with a line upon it, beyond which the player's stake must be placed." Continuing, Sir Charles said: "Beyond the marked table, however, there was no concert of action of any kind, but all who knew the story of the previous day's play and Sir William Gordon Cumming's actions saw the latter repeat the actions complained of.

Renewed interest was shown upon the part of the always most attentive audience, gathered in the court of Queen's Bench when Arthur Stanley Wilson, son of the millionaire owner of Tranby Croft, and leading stockholder in the well known Wilson line of steamers plying between Hull, London and New York and other ports, entered the witness box as the first witness for the defense.

Wilson testified to the fact that on the first night of the baccarat playing at Tranby Croft in September he saw a red counter representing £5 on a piece of paper in front of Sir William Gordon Cumming; when the latter's tableau won, Sir William had his hands in front of him and he also had another £5 counter in the palm of his right hand. The Baronet, according to the witness, then looked at Sir Edward Somerset's hand and seeing he held a natural and the court card, he, Sir William, at once dropped the £5 counter from his right hand and was paid on both of the counters he had thus placed on the table.

This evidence was given by Wilson without any hesitation and in a manner which seemed to impress the jury, and which decidedly impressed the audience, caused a great sensation in the courtroom.

Canadian Cabinet Changes.

By Associated Press.

OTTAWA, June 3.—A prominent French Canadian politician, who is considered good authority, says the Cabinet will be organized by Sir John Thompson, who will be Premier and Minister of Justice. Other changes will be as follows: Minister of Railways, J. A. Chapleau; Minister of Public Works, V. A. Kirkpatrick; President of the Council, W. B. Ives; Leader of the Senate, Lieutenant-Governor Angers.

The politician said the remaining portfolios would remain the same, except that some French Canadian member would succeed Chapleau as Secretary of State, and that J. Carling will probably retire from the Cabinet to make room for the present leader of the Opposition in the Ontario House. Sir Hector will be made Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec and Sir Charles Tupper will stay where he is.

Suicide From Despondency.

AN OLD-TIMER.

By Associated Press.

A Temperance Lecture From An Old Tin Cup.

The Elko Free Press would make the public believe the following: It says Fred Wilson of Tuscarora, who is here on jury trial, captured an old-timer Tuesday. It was nothing more nor less than the little old tin cup that has done duty at the ice water tank, in the barroom of the Depot Hotel, for the past twenty-one years.

Uncle Jimmy Clark has had several new bottoms put in it during that time, and was going to throw it away at last, when Wilson said he would take it for his cabinet. The wonder is that the cup has not disappeared long ago, as it was not chained to the tank. But there it has sat, day after day, month after month, year in and year out; drank out of by thousands, from the thirsty lad on the street to the old toper who, being refused a drink at the bar, quenched his thirst with the best drink of all—pure sparkling water out of the old tin cup.

If it had but a voice, what a temperance sermon that old tin cup could preach. But it will take a rest now, and pass the remainder of its days in company with many other curios in Fred's cabinet.

Hamilton vs. M. P. R. R.

A RENO mechanic was heard to remark yesterday that he sent east for his groceries and that he could save money by sending there for his supplies. In the course of the conversation he was asked what wages a mechanic of his skill could command at the east, and he hesitatingly replied two dollars per day. "What wages do you get here?" asked a by-stander. "Three and a-half and four dollars per day," it was suggested by some one that perhaps the State would be none the loser if the mechanic should go east where he buys all that he eats and wears and hunt for work, and the GAZETTE reporter, who overheard the conversation, was of the same opinion. A man who accepts of the prosperity Nevada offers, demands protection under the State laws and enjoys all the privileges of a citizen of the State, and sends abroad for everything he eats and wears, contributing the money he earns to the support of other communities, is short sighted. Money sent away is money lost, for it finds its way into channels that do not run this way; it is gone, never to return, whereby if you traded with B, a merchant of your town, he would pay it to C, and C to D, and in the course of a few weeks it would find its way back where it started. One thousand dollars spent at home goes through many hands and pays many debts that if sent away leave the community one thousand dollars poorer. Keep your money circulating at home and reap the reward that such a policy brings to every man, woman and child in the community in which you live. Do not make the mistake of sending away for sugar and flour that, when consumed, puts out of your reach the money you paid for it. This State has been handicapped by such men as the mechanic referred to too long. The writer knows of a man who was honored by one of the highest offices within the gift of this people for nearly twenty years. During all that time he bought his groceries and clothing for himself and wife in San Francisco. He even went so far as to invest every spare dollar this people paid him in California real estate, and when finally a combination of circumstances made it impossible for him to again be re-elected to office he moved to California, where he lives to-day. And that is not the only case of a like nature. Of all the men Nevada has ever honored by electing them to the highest office within her gift, hardly one of them have ever been taxpayers in the State. They have spent their time and money, paid them by this people, in San Francisco or New York and when out of office took their grip and the first train that came along and left the State.

W. H. GOULD has added another new feature to his creamery. It is a Babcock milk tester that enables him to tell just what butter is in a given quantity of milk. As it is a fact that less than half the cows kept for dairy purposes pay to milk is it surprising that often times butter making does not pay? Six pounds of butter to every hundred pounds of milk is a big yield, and it is often four than it is six. By the methods employed by Mr. Gould the dairies or the meadow can be cleaned of all cows that do not pay. Because a cow gives a big mess of milk it does not necessarily follow that she is more profitable than her sister who gives but half the quantity. It is the butter-making qualities the milk contains that should be the standard to judge from and Mr. Gould has put it within the reach of every one on the meadows to tell just what kind of cows he is milking, and keep only the choicest of his herd.

THE heir to the throne of England, the Prince of Wales, it seems from the dispatch yesterday is not above playing a brace game at faro and robbing the gentlemen who take a turn at the tiger. There is no accounting for the pranks some members of the royal family will cut. The Prince, when he becomes King, can come to America and "back" off the whole of England if he likes, but he must not find fault if he finds those here as handy at playing a "brace" as he is.

AN AIR-BICYCLE.

An Invention Which Will Navigate Against the Wind.

The Product of an Aeronaut Who Has Been Experimenting for Twelve Years to Accomplish the Present Result.

About three years ago Prof. Carl Myers, a well-known balloon expert, began a series of experiments on a line he had been theorizing on for some ten or twelve years, this being the construction of a balloon or airship which should become navigable and of some practical use. His experiments evolved the curious hybrid machine known as the "air bicycle."

Briefly speaking, says the New York Recorder, it is a compound of the balloon and the bicycle. The mechanism is small and almost hidden from view when the rider is seated. It was originally in the form of a wire chair, but has since been modified into the ordinary saddle of a bicycle. From this depends a fork, ending in two pedals, like those of a bicycle, the fork having a head and a cross bar with two handles, as usual. Down the center of the fork is a hollow tube in which there is a cog wheel and ratchet attachment, which is operated by the pedals, the handles, or both at once. This gearing furnishes the motive power of the machine. Thus the power applied can be varied according to the speed desired, and the hands can rest the feet, or vice versa, without interfering with the headway of the machine or decreasing its speed.

In front of the head of the machine there projects horizontally a light but strong steel shaft, which fits into a steel sheath. This sheath is rigid and firmly fixed to the head of the machine, while the shaft inside of it is cogged or ratcheted into the mechanism acted upon by the chain attachments of the pedals. At the extreme end of this, furthest from the rider, are four rigid arms, the end pair of which are rigidly fixed on the sheath, so that they occupy a position exactly parallel to the body of the rider; the other two are rigidly fixed on the revolving shaft, a couple of slots being cut in the sheath to permit of their movement. These arms are about three feet long and the end pair are each about four feet distant from the two nearest the rider. On them is spread a sheet or sail of light but strong cloth, in size six feet by four, which is set edgewise to the rider, and when at rest hangs quivering and shaking with every breath of air, like the sails of a ship in the doldrums.

Behind the rider there extends a long, slender bamboo rod, and close behind the rider's back rises a wire stay which supports the "hydrogen spindle." This is the scientific name of a balloon embodying the shape of both a needle and a sphere, a long, circular body, shaped like the wooden block which a boy calls a "tip-cat," except that the spindle is slightly flattened underneath, making it look like a boat turned bottom up. This spindle is filled with hydrogen gas, generated from water, and is covered with the ordinary balloon netting, which is guyed to the bamboo rod, and the steel shaft, much the same as the balloon, is attached to the car. The whole apparatus weighs fifteen pounds, and is steered either by the fan arrangement at the rear or by shifting the center of gravity as is a bicycle.

The principle may be most clearly defined in simple words as that of the child's air balloon—it will not rise by itself, but blow under it, and it soars to the clouds. That is the case with the air bicycle. The rider takes his seat, or rather he stands with his seat between his legs, his hands holding the handles. Stopping a little, he springs upward into the air, and by a quick pull at the handles brings the seat right up to him so that he involuntarily sits down, his feet falling upon the pedals. A sharp, decisive pressure on them sets the chain and cog-wheel attachment whirling, and this causes the steel shaft in front of the head to half turn, first to the right and then to the left, the two arms revolving with it, and as the two arms attached to the sheath remain unmoved the extended duck is swung into a right or a left-hand helix, varying in rapidity with the action of the pedals and producing a backward current of air similar to that experienced on the front platform of a swiftly-moving car, only that the current from the helix blows upward and strikes the flat lower surface of the "hydrogen spindle," bellying it inward, and so still more increasing its resistance to the powerful breeze, which slowly raises the whole machine into the air. The helix at the same time grabs at the air in front, as it were, and sucks it back. In this way the action is the reverse to that of a ship's propeller, which gives momentum to the vessel by its peculiar shape pressing against the water. The air bicycle progresses by a similar action to that of the propeller when the engines are reversed and the ship steams backward.

No steering gear is actually necessary, although the machine carries a rudder. It will steer by the principles of gravitation; if the rudder leans backward it ascends; if forward it descends, if to the right it goes to the right, and if to the left a turn to the left is the result. An inspection of the tilt of the spindle will demonstrate this clearly. The most important point of all is this: With this unique machine a head wind becomes a factor of propulsion, thus solving the great problem of aerial navigation. The head wind strikes it under the tilted up end of the spindle, forcing the machine higher and higher, while at the same time the helix in front is carrying it forward continually. Thus the harder it blows (in anything short of an actual gale) the faster and easier the machine goes ahead, while the wind passes astern and sweeping up the back of the spindle gives it a parting and additional lift forward.

Peasant Proprietorship in Europe. Inquiries instituted by the British foreign office regarding peasant proprietorship in Europe give some interesting results. A period of forty years is covered. Everywhere there is an increasing desire to purchase land. This is shown remarkably in France, where, although the actual cultivating population has diminished, the proprietors have grown in number to the displacement of tenants.

A Pioneer's Experience With Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I am a pioneer in this country, having been here 30 years. Four years ago my little son Billy became blood-poisoned by impure virus in vaccination. His arm swelled terribly, causing great agony; physicians said the arm must be amputated, and even then his recovery would be doubtful. One day I read about a blood purifier, new to me, and was surprised to learn that it was prepared by C. L. Hood, with whom I used to go to school in Chelsea, Vt. I decided to have my boy try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was much gratified when it seemed to help him. He continued to grow better as we gave him the Sarsaparilla, and having used bottles is now entirely cured. As Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished such wonderful results, I recommend it all I possibly can." JEROME M. SLEPHER, Upper Lake, Lake Co., Cal.

100 Doses One Dollar

Just 24.

In just 24 hours J. V. S. relieves constipation and sick headaches. After it gets the system under control an occasional dose prevents return. We refer by permission to W. H. Marshall, Brunswick House, S. F.; Geo. A. Werner, 331 California St., S. F.; Mrs. C. Melvin, 136 Kearny St., S. F., and many others who have found relief from constipation and sick headaches. G. W. Vincent, of 6 Terrence Court, S. F., writes: "I am 60 years of age and have had constipation 25 years. I was induced to try Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. I recognized in it an herb the Mexicans used to give us in the early 50's for bowel troubles. (I came to Cal. in 1858), and I know it would help me and it has. For the first time in years I can sleep well and my system is regular. The old Mexican herbs in this remedy are a certain cure in constipation and bowel troubles." Ask for Spring Fever.

At this season of the year the most vigorous and hearty people often have a feeling of weariness, tired and worn out, without ambition to do anything, and many break out in pimples and boils. What you require is a mild tonic medicine that will act gently on the liver and blood, and for this nothing equals Dr. King's Improved Liver Pills. They give an activity to the liver, purify the blood and by their mild tonic action, new vitality and strength to the whole system. Sold for 25 cents a box by S. J. Hodgkinson.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklin's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merit. Wm. Fininger's Drug-gist.

Indignant?

Yes indeed, to see you parading the streets. I thought you had such a dreadful headache. I did mother, but that dose of Cephaline cured it instantly. All druggists sell it.

CURLY DAN.

A Crack Whip On the Overland Stage Line Who Was Noted For His Snoring.

Among the old pioneer stage drivers over the Sierras was Curly Dan, a handsome and popular fellow, who was noted for his business like methods and pleasant manner. He was a Chesterfield in politeness and as gallant towards the ladies as a knight of old. He was a favorite with them, but it was remarked that Dan never became well enough acquainted to get married. He always remained on good terms with all of them, but it was noticed that after a brief acquaintance they invariably treated him as if they had agreed to simply "be a sister to him." The secret of this finally leaked out, Dan snored. At every home station Dan had to be provided for, with a bed in a remote part of the house, and they put him in the barn. Even there, the horses always had a tired and dejected look in the morning for no animal, whether man or beast, could sleep within

SOUND OF DAN'S CALLIOPE.

It was simply an unearthly combination of moans, snorts, groans and treble whistles, mingled with choking flutters of his throttle valve, that not only annoyed, but also filled one with distressing fear. But Dan was a crack whip and soon rose to a division agent. Then he was sent to the front and soon took a prominent position on the Montana line, running from Salt Lake to Helena. In 1868 the stage was robbed near Malad station of a large sum in money and gold bullion, and when it arrived at Malad, Dan was found there, and hastily organized a party which he led in pursuit of the robbers. They succeeded in overtaking and surrounding them in a canyon densely covered with underbrush. In crawling through this on his hands and knees, Dan heard a suspicious noise, and raising his head and body up to see through an opening in the brush he was confronted at a few yards distance by one of the robbers who deliberately fired point blank at him with a Henry rifle. The ball struck Dan near the center of the breast and went

DIRECTLY THROUGH HIM.

Dan fell and knew no more until rescued by his companions and removed from the brush. He was thought to be dead, and one of the rescuers said pathetically, "Dan 'll never snore any more." But to the surprise of all, Dan revived, was carefully nursed and cared for by Wells, Fargo & Co., in whose employ he was at the time, and finally recovered. It was supposed by all that he would be cured of his snoring, because of the character of the wound, but to the surprise of his old friends, he snored worse than ever. It seemed impossible, but such was the case, and Dan was regarded by his comrades as a holy terror, and he always had a room to himself. His duties, some years afterwards, brought him into Pioche late one night, when, from some cause, he could not get a bed. The keepers of the lodging houses all knew him it seemed, and in a moment of absent mind, this writer tendered him a share of his bed, then in the second story of the express and stage office. It was midnight when the office duties ended and Dan sat by the stove until the work was all finished. We then went up stairs and retired, and

DAN WENT TO SLEEP.

Within a minute, and softly began to snore, but this was only preliminary. He soon settled down to regular work, and, to be brief, he fairly raised the roof. Efforts to awaken him were utterly futile. He had rode without stopping from Salt Lake City, 225 miles, and tired out; he was as dead as if dosed with morphine. I shook him and talked to him, but it was useless. One night as well he talked to the Sphinx. Sleep was utterly out of the question of with me, although so weary that my eyes ached. I then got mad and began to kick him, but as that had no effect I tried to roll him out of bed, but he was on the back part of it and I couldn't turn him over. By this time I was thoroughly exasperated, and at my wife's end for I could think of no relief and while he was sleeping as sound as a log—or a whole raft of them for that matter—I was doomed to lay awake all night and listen to that frightful menagerie of unearthly sounds. For three hours this continued and my nerves were racked so that I was trembling. At that moment, to my great relief the fire bell rang, and jumping to my feet I viciously

YELLED FIRE! FIRE!!

At the top of my voice and grabbing my clothes ran down stairs, dressed and started on a run for the scene of the fire, up at the Pioche-Phoenix mine, three-fourths of a mile away. I stayed until daylight, working to keep awake. When I returned Dan was still snoring. The early stages were dispatched at 6 o'clock, and, continuing until 8 o'clock, a constant racket was kept up in the office, but above it all Dan's snores were as regular as the beating of the surf. At 9 o'clock the banking department of Wells, Fargo & Co. opened in the same office. The general agent appeared on the scene, and the cashier, teller and book-keeper were busy getting the vault open and moving out books and trays of coin. The noise from up stairs then attracted their attention. I was mum and unconscious of any unusual sound. I was gazing for revenge. Dan was doing his level best; he was evidently on the home stretch and the choking groans were horrifying. The agent, listened. He knew Dan and recognized the snore, and dashing down his pen, he sang out to the porter, "Go put that man out or kill him."

Anaconda Shut Down.

A press dispatch from Helena, Montana, states that the last of the employees of the great Anaconda Mining Company have been discharged, even to the watchman, and the company's mines at Butte and the mammoth smelter at Anaconda are shut up tight. More than 3,000 men are thrown out of work.

First and second divisions Treble Clef Club.
Orchestra.....

As the proceeds of the entertainment are to be devoted to the purchase of an organ for the Episcopal Church, to take the place of the cheap instrument that Miss Quaille has been forced to use for the past fourteen years, if for no other reason should it be very liberally patronized by the people of Reno. But there are other reasons why the musical should draw a big house: The excellence of the program as arranged insures a very enjoyable evening to all lovers of good music, and as it will probably be the last opportunity the public will have to show its appreciation of this excellent lady's noble work in the community, the Opera House should be packed as it never was before. Miss Quaille has been an earnest worker in this community for fourteen years for all that is good; every boy and girl in the town have felt the good effects of her teaching, either directly or indirectly; her purse has always been open to the poor and needy and fully twenty-five per cent. of her earnings have been spent in well doing. On the 20th of June she leaves this field to make her future home with the Christian Workers of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the least we can do is to show that her work in this community has been appreciated by contributing to the organ fund of Trinity Church enough to enable them to make the purchase, for it would please Miss Quaille and none of us would feel the expenditure.

SUICIDED.

Ex-Judge T. D. Edwards of Carson Kills Himself While Laboring Under a Fit of Temporary Insanity.

Judge T. D. Edwards, an old time resident of Carson and Ormsby county's District Attorney at this time, committed suicide at 8:15 last evening by shooting himself twice in the left temple with a small-calibre pistol. The explosion burned the place. His son, Dwight, is there, and the eldest daughter, Ella, is in Berkeley, Cal. The cause for the rash act is said to have been temporary insanity. Mr. Edwards was about 61 years of age, a native of Kentucky, and came into Nevada in 1863, settling in Carson with his family. He was by profession a lawyer, and soon took an active part in the political history of the State, prominently as a Republican. In 1873 he was elected a member of the State Senate, and rendered creditable service during his four years' term as Senator.

In 1882 he was elected District Judge of Ormsby and Douglas counties, making a good record as such, and in 1886 he ran for the responsible position of Supreme Judge, but was beaten by Judge Belknap.

The remains will be taken to Oakland for interment under the auspices of the Masons.

THE PIONEER.

The Finest Stock of Goods Ever Before Opened in This State is Now Being Received By M. Nathan.

M. Nathan is as much a part of Reno as the section of land on which the town is located. He came here before the shriek of the locomotive whistle could be heard and since early in 1868 has been interested with Reno and her best interests. All these years he has been a merchant and has always kept abreast of the times. He is in the field this summer with one of the largest stocks of gentlemen's boys', and children's suits ever before opened in this city. He is making a specialty of neat wear and negligee and black silk shirts—just the latest fad for the summer of '91 and if you don't go there and buy a black silk shirt you are "not in." Call and inspect his large stock of magnificent neck ties. Read his double column ad, which tells you more.

Murder in the Second Degree.

The jury in the case of Benjamin Morris, tried in Elko county for the murder of a Frenchman near Wells last fall, returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. The brute will be sentenced next Friday.

Douglas Farmers.

A delegation of Douglas county farmers visited the Gould creamery yesterday. Douglas does not propose to be behind the times and is taking steps to put in a creamery plant in that locality.

Resigned.

Colo. C. Atherton has resigned the position as road master for the Virginia and Truckee railroad, and W. H. Kirk has been appointed in his place.

Behind the Times.—Poet, consulting thermometer—"I declare! yet written 60 and not one spring sonnet yet written!" Spring suits in great variety at John Sunderland's.

The Independent of the 1st inst. says: It rained in Elko every day during the month of May. The oldest inhabitant never saw such a season as this has been so far.

Twenty-one Italian immigrants who arrived at New York on board the steamer Massalia, were debarrued from landing last week, on the ground that they were ex-convicts.

In a Wisconsin municipal court the other day, the sentence of a Salvation Army soldier was doubled because he said "amen" to what the judge first gave him. It won't do to monkey with a court.

The dance to be given by the Commercial Class of '91 at the Pavilion on Friday evening, the 5th inst., will be a success, as the managers include some of Reno's favorite young ladies and gentlemen. Frederick & Barlow's band will furnish the music.

The Kansas City Star says: A couple of tobaccoists from the Pacific slope are looking up a location for a cigar factory in Missouri. The trouble about starting an enterprise of that kind in this State is that most of the people smoke corn-cob pipes.

The Homer Index of the 30th ult. says: Aurora mines are not showing up as well as we had hoped for. There are too many salaried drones and stipendiaries—more of these than workers underground. The outfit is too heavy and the input exceeds the output.

The schooner Robert and Minnie was to be released yesterday by the United States authorities at Los Angeles. The case of Seaborn Trumbull, charged with violation of the neutrality laws, has been fixed for September 15th, a bond having been given for $5,000 as requested.

General Veazey, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., has issued official general orders calling upon all Grand Army comrades in all parts of the United States to contribute to the $300,000 fund required to erect the National G. A. R. Memorial Hall at Decatur, Ill., the birthplace of the organization.

Prentice Mulford, well known in New York and California as a newspaper man and philosophical writer, was found dead in a canoe in Sheephead Bay on Saturday. He was a miner and school teacher in Calaveras and Tuolumne in the early days. He was in the habit of traveling by himself and writing down his thoughts.

"Struck the Golden Mean" as a Blood Purifier.

The Detroit Free Press says: "Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, prepared by the Charles Wright Medicine Company, of this city, has struck the Golden Mean in the treatment of all blood diseases, and its success is an evidence that an honest, pure and valuable medicine is not impossible of attracting the attention of every family. There seems to be but one opinion as to its merit as a family medicine."

This is the real secret of the success of this wonderful remedy. Its perfect and speedy action, in removing all impure and poisonous matter from blood. No home should be without it, as a thorough and effectual blood purifier for young and old. For sale by all druggists.
